AU's Virtual Exchange Programs are Booming

AU's virtual exchange programs have attracted 1152 international students from 31 universities this year. The global rampage of COVID-19 has changed the face of international higher education. With the close of most national borders, the exchange programs between universities are suspended and the date of reopening seems uncertain at this moment. AU has approximately 400 sister universities around the world and exchange students take up a large proportion of the international students...Read More
